

McDaniel Tennis Foundation Increases Outreach Programs

The McDaniel Foundation continues to expand its outreach programs for the ball boys and teaching pros working at La Terrazas and the La Romana Country Club. This year the foundation added health insurance for the 22 teaching pros who were not covered under their spouse's policy. The Foundation's main fundraising event is the annual tournament matching the 32 teaching pros from La Terraza and the LRCC for boasting rights as to who has the best player in Casa de Campo. This 9th edition of the event was won by Pedro Nolasco from La Terraza over last year's champion Francisco Concepción from LRCC 6-3, 6-2. This is Nolasco's third win in the event.

resident Rick McDaniel wishes to thank the resort's community, individual and corporate sponsors for their continued support in benefit of the Casa de Campo ball boys and teaching pros.

During the event the foundation raised more than US$55,000 to fund its activities that in addition to the health insurance feature 26 school scholarships covering tuition, uniforms, books and supplies for ball boys, two full tuition university scholarships, and English classes for the ball boys and teaching pros at both La Terraza and LRCC.

This year's honorary chairman award went to Alfonso Paniagua, administrator and vice president of Costasur Dominicana for his hard work and support for the event over the years.

This year's scholarship recipients were Alfredo Johnson, Ronni Mercedes, and Marlin Berroa, who received the scholarship in honor of his father Adriano Berroa, a teaching pro and personal trainer at LRCC who died tragically several years ago. The university tuition scholarship was awarded to Andy Mercedes who has been a ball boy at La Terraza for the last five years and is heading to Universidad del Caribe in Santo Domingo to study hotel administration.

Francisco Concepción was the runner up.
